Preface

The Junior Class of 1918 presents this "Khaki Kaw" to Washburn students, alumni, and friends, hoping that the readers will find here a record of one of the most memorable years in Washburn's history, and hoping also that it may be the means of passing on to others that inspiration which Washburn has given to us.

But above all, we want this Kaw to be a manifestation of Washburn's unflinching loyalty to her country, and hope that it may record with truth and precision, her unselfish sacrifice of money, men, and love in this great World Struggle.

"Be the Man Behind the Man Behind the Gun."

By Josephine Keizer Littlejohn, ES -'09.

If you can't be the man behind the gun,
If you can't be the Hero in the sun,
Do not idle in the dark,
Look alive there! Be a spark!
Be the man behind the man behind the gun!

If you can't be the man behind the gun,
Do not fold your arms until the work is done
You can find some humble deed,
That will fill a waiting need
Be the man behind the man behind the gun!

If you can't be the man behind the gun,
Why, you can go on with what he has begun.
He will give his life in vain,
If you don't back up his gain,
Be the man behind the man behind the gun!

If you can't be the man behind the gun,
Nor the man behind the man behind the gun,
Point the path where Honor gleams,
Be his Hope, his Love, his Dreams;
Be the Girl behind the man behind the gun!

If you've given to the man behind the gun
Every hope and dream that's in you—one by one,
Let his need surmount your fears,
Give him smiles still through your tears,
O, you Mother of the man behind the gun!

If you can't be the man behind the gun,
A little aid is better far than none.
If he's giving you his life,
Why, do something for his wife.
Be the man behind the man behind the gun!

If you can't be the man behind the gun,
You can try to help his daughter or his son.
If a bullet knocks him prone,
And his kids are left alone,
Tell 'em you're behind the man behind the gun.

SCENES FROM CAMP PIKE

Washburn Ambulance Company.

AMBULANCE Company No. 347, 312th Sanitary Train, 8th Division, National Army, is the official designation of the ambulance company which was organized by Washburn College in the summer of 1917 under the direction of the American Red Cross. As officially recognized by the Red Cross, it was Red Cross Ambulance Co. 44, of Topeka, Kansas, but when mustered into federal service, was given its present title. The company consists of five commissioned officers, and one hundred and twenty-two enlisted men. The officers are Captain C. H. Lerrigo, Lieutenants, J. A. Crabb, S. L. Cox, D. Munford, and A. S. Dawson.

The large percent of the enlisted men are from Washburn College.

Captain C. H. Lerrigo,
Washburn Ambulance Co.

Washburn Ambulance Company.

TO Professor J. E. Kirkpatrick and his coworkers is due much of the credit for the successful organization of the Washburn Ambulance Company. Only those who know the slow and tedious processes of such an undertaking, can fully appreciate the services of Professor Kirkpatrick in this matter. Those who served on the committee which assisted him were:—

Frank Drenning, '96.
 Daisy Neil, '07.
 Louise McNeal, '08
 Howard Searle, '14
 David Neiswanger, '14.
 Dwight Ream, '15.

When Washburn prides herself on the fact that she is the only college of her size which has organized such a company she must remember that special honor is due to these people.

Souls of Honor

Summary of Washburn's Part In the War.

ASHBURN College is proud of her soldiers. It is her hope, however, that a share in her contribution towards winning the war may be made by those who have stayed at home, as well as by those who have gone "over there."

The first definite action of the College after the declaration of war, was the organization of Red Cross courses in Hygiene and First Aid, for the girls, and for the boys, the establishment of military drill. About two hundred and fifty diplomas were granted in the Red Cross courses. We are indebted for the success of this undertaking to the many doctors and trained nurses of Topeka who gave their time and services to conduct the lecture work and demonstration.

In the Fall of 1917, Washburn conducted successfully her part of the National campaign for a Student Friendship War Fund of one million dollars. Washburn's pledge was two thousand dollars, and her actual contribution, about two thousand, five hundred dollars. This campaign was conducted by a student committee and the major part of the fund was pledged in forty-eight hours after the campaign was started.

In the Red Cross Drive of December, 1917, a student committee canvassed the College and obtained about two hundred sixty-five new memberships in the Red Cross. Many of the students, of course, had become members previously.

Other things have been done for the Washburn men who are in the service. Washburn College students have been divided into committees of two or three, each of which has a Washburn soldier as a "ward." These committees keep their wards in touch with the life of the school. At Thanksgiving, and at Christmas, the school sent a gift to the Washburn Ambulance Company, at Camp Pike. The Christmas gift was an Edison.

The Service Record of Washburn College is not yet complete. It will not be complete until peace has come, and we are "mustered out" from war service, to take up again with more intense devotion the constructive work of peace. The "Washburn spirit," the spirit of sacrificial service, will glow with a brighter flame, because we voluntarily enlisted "for the period of the war."

DEAR ED:—

Well, Ed, I'm must too dizzy to write steady, on account of ninety percent of the country being blown past the barracks this morning and being blown back, at the present moment, so that I can't tell just what part of the landscape I'm looking at, but—if too much of said dusty country doesn't stop in my eyes, I will tell you all the news. And say, Ed, you've got to come down here if you want to see real, genuine dust!

Well, maybe you haven't heard about our trip down here. I had a lower. Some Pullman accommodations, I tell you. Something new and original. The fellows turned up the chairs of the chair cars (there were two of them) so that they were flat and some of the boys curled up on the tops—those were the uppers, but most of us said Safety First, and took the lowers on the floor, or in the aisle. Nobody slept in the hat racks, I guess, but they did every place else.

I know you're sort of shy, Ed, but you ought to have been along at Nowata, Oklahoma. During a stop of about ten minutes, a number of "prairie chickens" gathered around the cars. The fellows near the doors rushed out when the girls showed a desire to kiss the soldier boys. Manning Baleh had hard luck, in the twilight, he picked out one of African descent! They all look good when they're far away, (or in the dark).

Well, Ed, we got to camp after a while, and believe me, they had to put the S. R. O. sign out in front of the shower rooms, before very many minutes past. Then we were ready for eats. I guess you've heard about the fellow that told his girl that the meal she'd cooked was good, what there was of it, and then tried to make it O. K., by saying that there was plenty of it, such as it was. Well, that's us, for the first ten days, and no joke about it. Our first meal after we got to camp, was lemonade, with bread and butter. No more, no less. Poor Joe Haynes got terribly thin. One night we had red lemonade, and one of the fellows mistook Joe for the thermometer.

I believe I have spread about all the news, I know, so will close.

Your Old Pal,

PETE.

Ambulance Company 347.

Camp Pike, Ark., Dec. 7, 1917.

DEAR ED:-

I'm on ambulance today and so am writing a long intended letter while waiting for a call. It is snowing a regular blizzard today (on account of this being a winter resort, I guess) and it'll probably be my luck to get a call over to Ft. Logan H. Roots, which is about seven miles on the level, but a good deal more when you count the up and down grades on the hills, especially in six inches of snow.

Well Ed, you probably heard something about our football team. We had a regular team, believe me. They cleaned up everything in camp, and also a college team, near here. The closest game, in fact, the only close one, was a tie game with an officer's team. The officer's team was composed of ex-college stars, but our boys played them to a standstill, and would have beaten them if the umpire hadn't been an officer. We tried to get another game, but they had lost their nerve and didn't want to play. Thanksgiving day, our boys beat the Army and Navy Hospital team at Hot Springs.

The government has issued us considerable clothing and equipment by now. We all have three pairs of shoes. They're certainly generous with the shoe leather. If a fellow had been wearing a nine C he received two pairs of eleven EE which he could put on and jump back and forth in. They gave us our second shirt yesterday. The first one was issued a few days after we reached here, in September, and now we have a chance to wash it. Not much laundry expense at that rate.

We have only thirty overcoats for the company and they are all twins. We have a checkroom for them with Woody Smith in charge and check out an overcoat when we go on a drive. Woody sure was meant to be a salesman. When a fellow comes in for a coat, he says, just as polite as any clerk, "Any thing in overcoats today? We have a new line just in, sir. Here's the very model for you, just your style. Oh yes, sir, that's the very latest thing, to have the skirts of the overcoat wrap around the ankles when you walk. Shall I have it sent out, or will you wear it?"

Well, Corporal has just got a phone call, and it's for an amb. to go over to the Fort, as I said it would be, since it's my time to go out.

Yours in Gloom,

PETE.

Ambulance Company 347.

Camp Pike, Ark., Jan. 15, 1918.

DEAR ED:—

Well Ed, here we are still at Camp Pike, and it's nearly four months since we left Topeka, we sure thought then that we'd be in Berlin by now.

There are seven new men in the company now, and there's sure a lot for them to learn. Worley wore his leggins on the wrong legs for a whole day without noticing anything wrong! Well Ed, we were all young once.

We had a great spread Christmas day—turkey and trimmings, and Christmas Eve we had a celebration in the barracks, with the jazz band going full force, and stunts, and a Christmas tree, Carl Linge drew six weenies, and Carl Byers some chewing tobacco!

Say, you've heard about perpetual motion, Ed. Well that's what our Edison is, that the College sent us. Woody Smith plays the "Pussy Cat Rag" every minute he is off duty. Some dark night, that record is going to be stepped on—accidentally.

Say, did I tell you about Louis Smith? He had some hard luck last month. He is one of the buglers of the company, and he bugled with such force that he had a blow out and had to be sent to the hospital to be patched up.

There have been fifty first class privates appointed and those who are still bucks are busy with alibis. Most of them claim that the names were placed in a hat, and fifty drawn out. As yours truly is a first class, he doesn't believe it. Say, Ed, just in strictest confidence, I heard a fellow say yesterday who knows a major's orderly, that he had heard a high authority say that the 87th division was the best in the country, and also that the Sanitary Train was the most efficient part of the division. Just between you and me, it's common talk about Ambulance Company 347 being the best in the Sanitary Train, and of course, Ed, you being a friend of mine, you can draw your own conclusions about yours truly, me being sort of modest, and not wanting to say anything bold.

Well there goes tattoo.

Yours,

PETE.

Alumni Association.

THE Alumni Association and its members keep alive the "Washburn Spirit" in the undergraduate as well as in the graduate and is responsible for sending many good men and women to Washburn.

The Association holds its annual meetings on the Tuesday before Commencement and their class reunions are often the outstanding features of the Commencement program.

The monthly bulletin, which is now published by the College and sent to the alumnae will probably soon be taken over by the Alumni Association and made into a regular magazine.

The Spirit of the Fight.

(Lieut. Elmer A. Shelton, ex. '12, Battery D, 5th Coast Artillery, Fort Lovett, Portland, Maine.)

Down in the dark battalions of the strong heart, fighting men,
There is a place appointed unto me;
They are few, the foe is many, but shall I falter then—
I may haply turn defeat to victory.
I will go forth to the fighting with a rapture at my heart,
And my gaze set hard against a goodly goal,
Not boastfully, nor hoping to play a hero's part,
But to battle for the honor of my soul

Give me labor, give me battle, give me more and more of life,
For I have youth and faith and strength to give;
Let me die, so it be nobly, at the red heart of the strife,
If to die be better service than to live
Give to me the thick of conflict, where the strong men do their work,
And the weary world's hard victories are won,
Give to me the strong man's burden, lest my spirit learn to shirk,
And a fitting foe to spend my strength upon.

Seniors in the Service.

ALTHOUGH this completes the Senior Class that is actually graduating from Washburn this year, there are seven boys who would undoubtedly have graduated, were they not now enlisted in the service. We feel that these boys deserve a place in this Khaki-Klad Kew for they are doing their duty to their country and have been obliged to forgo their college education for that duty. We, therefore list them here as members of this graduating class, although they will not receive a diploma with their classmates.

BRIAN MUIRHEAD, Aviation

KENNETH KERANS, Ambulance Co. 347

WOODWARD SMITH, Ambulance Co. 347.

FRED NORRIS, 110th Engineers.

LEO HELM, Ambulance Co. 347

HOWARD COX, Army Y. M. C. A.

PAUL RICE, Ambulance Co. 347

JUNIORS

HELENE FORSCH.

She helps in the counter attacks against the evacuation of German classes. Never camouflages in class.

LILLIE WISER.

One of Uncle Sam's loyal nieces, quartered at Holbrook barracks, hence a soldier of the Washburn Home guard.

KATHLEEN ROGAN.

Has an admirable service record. Has a medal for complete and thorough reading of soci army manuals.

SARAH ROBINSON.

Drills well! So but has never responded to the order to "Fall in." Owns Bobby, the credi cross dog.

EULA FLEMING.

Somewhat hasty in everything, but as it is war time this is considered commendable in Washburn cantonment.

LUCILE BOMGARDNER.

She had been absent from drill. Said the captain, "Have you any excuse to offer?" Said she, "I have been to Aggieville," and the captain said no more for all is fair in love and war.

ALICE GORDON.

Is an admirer of the troop known as Gammas but declares that a Y. M. C. A. secretary comes ahead even of a gold hat cord.

MARIE GREEN.

Efficient assistant in the commissary department. Sees that the sandwiches are mustered in.

FRANCES GAW.

Paymaster of the bravest company—the Juniors. Will receive a commission from Washburn and then will turn her periscope on medical maneuvers.

DOROTHY FOSTER.

Tune: "The Rosary".
The candy I send to Fort Sill
Means forty times my receipt
To make it every hour is my will,
Divinity, Divinity.

MIRIAM FRANKLIN.

But lately transferred from Baldwin. Has belonged to the banjo detachment of a chaquetaqua division.

RUTH LARIMER.

A conscientious objector to confining society attacks to affairs at Washburn. Believes in an occasional charge on the ones of K. U.

MINDA McKEE.

Is very prominent at Review. Is a gun in all matters of law and politics.

BEATRICE McLEOD.

Proficient in "setting up exercises" before an examination. Never needs a convoy in her work.

SABRA EPTLER.

Interested in Russia and a picture in King's studio. Has been known to have Russian documents, non-war, in her possession.

BESSIE HANSON.

One of Herbert Hoover's representatives in College Hill. Is often mentioned in W. G. official dispatches.

MELVA DAVIS.

Sergeant of Etiquette and Seating Arrangement at Hartford Mess Hall. Will not allow bombs at the table.

HARRY ANDERSON.

In debate he never surrenders a point to the enemy. Regularly advances toward Hartford.

LAURA NEISWANGER.

Gallant staff officer. Superintends the training of carrier pigeons. Wears the feather of honor because of her famous battalion of birds.

LULU WISER.

One of the wildest soldiers in camp. Is a member of the Holbrook G. M. P. (Garrison Military Police).

GENEVIEVE McMILLAN.

Efficiently Reviews her staff. May always be found at the Helm of affairs.

PAULINE McVEY.

"Prepare for inspection" and Pauline produces her kit bag consisting of a vanity box. Says the real capital of Arkansas is seven miles north of Little Rock.

JOHN PARKINSON.

A paymaster of the 1918 Army Manual—the Kaw. Attacks all Junior's pocketbooks.

MARGUERITE SCOTT.

Will be a fine ambulance driver for she has proved able to drive her car as fast as a Union Pacific Troop train.

JAMES PERRY.

Would not be a member of the Home Guard and has lately been transferred from the Khaki Klad staff to the Coast Artillery.

NINA HANSON.

Commands attention when she delivers orations on Military and other subjects. Has a medal for work in declamation.

KATHARINE KNOWLES.

Is the chief of the Theta M. P. (Military Police). Uses gundrops for ammunition.

"CLAY BAKER.

Recruiting officer of the Triangle Club and has a record of good service on the gridiron. Another transfer from the Khaki-Klad staff.

THEO CORB.

Claims that other government service is just as valorous as service in the army. Often feels a call to the colors, especially to red.

EMMA LYMAN.

Kirkpatrick's lieutenant and is a staff officer. Has a medal for valor in History. Often mounts guard at the library war office, where she knits tirelessly.

GLENN KASSEBAUM.

Brigadier General of Kaw Staff. Gives frequent soda fountain and counter-orders at J. Weekes' canteen.

MARION LEHRIG.

RUTH THOMPSON.

Military authority on the pickle vine and on hair-lip rabbits. Is a member of the Theta defense league. Shows symptoms of having knittitis.

ALBERTA STIMSON.

Nickel, dime and quarter master of the W. G. and Dancing companies. Seldom permits a charge.

MARGUERITE THRAIFF.

Is the O. C. (Officer Commanding) of the May Fete. Has obeyed the order "Advance, friend, and have your fortune told."

RUTH TOMLINSON.

Belongs to the S. C. (Service Corps) of the bacteriology Reserve. Goes into transport over all good times.

MARGARET STYDAM.

Came from a real military fortress to enlist in the Washburn Army. The west point of her attention is Hawaii.

CHRISTINA WARD.

Tune "Maryland."
 "Of looks that claim to better be
 It's camouflaged, just camouflaged,
 The truth you cannot fail to see,
 They're camouflaged, just camouflaged."

EDITH STARK.

Is the drill sergeant of Abethan company, and a most able soldier. Never exceeds the speed limit except when talking French. Highly combustible.

FRANCES MYERS.

Assists in the Big Push back of the lines.
Patrols the Alpha Phi barracks. Very orderly.

FLORENCE FAIR.

Has adopted the gold cord as her emblem, in spite of all we did to Warn 'er. Hasn't turned her watch back yet.

BESS CUDDY.

Color Sergeant. Impossible to look over the top. Wears the quill of honor for work in Reviewing the college troops.

JESSIE DOUGLASS.

Her work is to see that the cantonment is constructed in an artistic manner. Decorates the barracks.

HELEN DOLMAN.

Is the composer of a Washburn battle song.
Sometimes is in charge of the war office.

ETTA McLEOD.

Is interested in the dramatic tactics of the cantonment. Has enlisted in the Washburn national guard.

EDNA SMITH.

Should be an efficient guard at a communication trench if her zeal at communication thru Uncle Sam's postal service is any proof.

MARION BUSSEY.

Army bacteriologist. When she forgot the password she said Staphylococcus aureus, which made the sentry fall off the campus parapet.

MARGARET WHITTEMORE.

All armies have ch-arts. The ch-art maker is a staff officer of the highest rank and ability.

DOROTHY WAHLE.

Is an attache' of the law legion. Believes in putting another fist in pacifist.

HELEN WHITTAKER.

Before the war she might have been considered an Astrologer. The same work in 1918 gives her the title of Aerial Observer of Washburn Cantonment.

MILDRED WILSON.

A loyal member of the Kappa Chi squad. Would like a soldier who would take her to Sunday baseball games.

MARGHERITE CALVERT.

When she wears the blue and white of Washburn, she is frequently mistaken for an American flag. Wears asbestos hairpins.

DeVAUGHN DEAN.

The captain said Dean was too thin to shoulder a rifle and suggested that he be put to cleaning guns. "All very well," said the lieutenant, "but who will pull him thru."

GLEE IDEN.

By some of the Washburn soldiers she is considered hard to badge. But when she gets started—

ANNE HAWLEY.

Always quick to find her range and is sure to hit the mark. Recites in double quick time.

MARJORIE HERRIG.

Won the D. C. M. (Distinguished Conduct Medal) for gallant service back of the lines. Is fond of Military Art.

MARY HOLL.

Instructs the prisoners in the Science Guard house. Frequently gives reprises for shopping at J. Weekes' canteen.

BERTHA JACKSON.

Advances on Washburn from the North. Is well informed on all drill regulations and army rules.

ESTHER JENSON.

Helps with the mobilization of all good times in Washburn. Can't be imagined in No Man's Land.

HELEN HUNTER.

Of the Theta Barracks and the Review Staff. Does valorously in the fighting zone the campus. Her passports all say passSSSS.

CATHERINE CONKLING.

Staff officer. Relieves the monotony of No Man's Land by frequent trips to K. U.

AVIS CLAYTON.

A debater who brings in the judges with her counter attacks. Of the Althean platoon. Travels on a Smiley Book.

Juniors in Service.

THE following members of the Junior Class are serving Uncle Sam and therefore cannot be represented in this book except by name. We are proud of these members of our class and do not wish to have them left out of the Junior Roll.

ACADEMY.

WHEN Washburn College was chartered and opened its doors in 1865, it was an Academy in the make up of its student body. There was no college preparatory work done in the public schools. Colleges had to do the preliminary work in order to have students of college grade. It was President MacVicar's idea that academies should be established in strategic points in the state as feeders to Washburn. While the academy here was the mother school, similar academies were started in Stockton, Hiawatha and Eureka for the same purpose.

W. C. Wheeler,
Principal of Academy.

As the high school system has grown up in the state these academies gradually have been withdrawn; and now this academy with us alone remains. It still renders service to some who find it inconvenient to attend high school elsewhere, and to Fine Arts and college students who are deficient in a few credits.

The Academy sustains its own social interests. They have their own Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. The girls conduct a lively Literary Society, The Alpha, by name which meets each Friday afternoon. Every year the Academy produces a play.

Professor Wilson C. Wheeler is principal of the Academy. He is the sixth in the twenty-five years of its existence.

Law Freshmen.

IN 1903 the Washburn Law School was organized. It is now one of the most important departments of the College. From the first, the Law School has stood for the highest standard of work and only one of its members has ever failed at the bar examination. This excellent record is due, no doubt to the splendid faculty, which includes the most prominent men of this profession in the city.

The school is located down town, which position gives it the added advantage of close proximity to the professional libraries of the city.

Dean Albert J. Harno who has but recently taken the position of Dean of the Law School, is a graduate of the Dakota Wesleyan University and of the Yale University Law School, where he stood first in his class for three years and graduated with highest honors. He gave up his law practice in Los Angeles, California, to take the place on the Washburn Law faculty last fall. Washburn considers herself unusually fortunate in securing Dean Harno.

Although somewhat depleted by the demands of war, the Law School has five graduates this year, and a Freshman class of fourteen members.

Grand Revue.

History.

WASHBURN College has a history which reflects the splendid pioneer spirit of our Kansas fathers, flavored with that romance which we constantly associate with early history. Negotiations for establishing a college had been under way as early as 1857, but the actual founding of the College by the General Association of Congregational Ministers and Churches of Kansas did not occur until 1865. Topeka was chosen as a site for the future Washburn College, after consideration of the feasibility of Leavenworth, Lawrence and Topeka. Lawrence was at one time definitely chosen and the College would probably be located on the present University site had not a famine year prevented the people of Lawrence from redeeming their pledges.

Two men who worked unceasingly during these discouraging times were Mr. Rice and Colonel Ritchie. The latter mortgaged his land in order that Mr. Rice might go east to raise money for the enterprise. Mr. Rice who had come to Kansas as a member of the Beecher Bible Rifle Company, first went to Brooklyn to see Henry Ward Beecher. Finding that Mr. Beecher was away from home, Mr. Rice went to Hartford, Conn., his former home. There Hooker, Henry Ward Beecher's sister, and her sister Harriet Beecher Stowe and Miss Catherine E. Beecher became interested and soon Mr. Hooker and his partner, the Honorable Francis Gillet, United States senator from Connecticut, contributed one thousand dollars. With this and another thousand already obtained, Mr. Rice returned to Topeka. Since the Topeka banks did not have enough money to cash the draft for two thousand dollars, Mr. Rice went to Leavenworth to have this done. Half of the money was then paid for the present site of 160 acres. On February 6, 1865, a charter was granted to the trustees of Lincoln College, as it was then called. This charter declared the purpose of the College to be "the diffusion of knowledge, and the advancement of virtue and religion and the incorporation of an institution of learning, of high literary and religious character . . . which shall commemorate the triumph of liberty over slavery in our nation . . . and afford to all classes, without distinction of color, the advantage of a liberal education."

The corner of 16th and Jackson streets where the State Memorial building now stands, was the site on which the first building was built. Although seven thousand dollars had been raised, no contractor could be found who had faith enough in the enterprise to accept the job. On account of this, Mr. Rice asked for, and received the contract. United States soldiers from Maine and Massachusetts, stationed in Topeka, dug the trenches. Native timber was used.

College opened in this building January 3, 1866, with a staff of three teachers and thirty-eight students.

The success of the institution was assured in 1868 by a gift of twenty-five thousand dollars from Ichabod Washburn of Worcester, Mass. In recognition of this the name was changed from Lincoln to Washburn College.

Reverend Butterfield, the first president, was elected in 1869, Reverend Peter MacVicar succeeded him two years later. Unusual progress marked President MacVicar's administration. The down town building was sold to the city, and Rice Hall erected on the permanent site. The northeast corner of the land was chosen for the campus, and an osage hedge, surrounded by a board fence, enclosed the land. Many trees were planted. Before the completion of rooms in Rice Hall, classes had met in various places, even a grocery store serving in the capacity of class room at one time. After Rice Hall was completed the women from out of town lived in the basement, the men on the second floor, with the faculty on the intervening floor. Chapel was held in the west end of Rice Hall.

Although the times were not very prosperous, the College had in 1877, vested funds amounting to forty-five thousand dollars. Hartford cottage was built in 1870. This building was placed west of the campus enclosed by the hedge and board fence. The first meal at Hartford was an event. According to one description "a plentiful supply of crackers, milk and syrup was spread on the kitchen table, guiltless of a table cloth and otherwise primitive in its appointments—and eight girls, sitting on inverted crocks, made a hearty meal."

Whitin Cottage, for men, was built in 1883 and three years later, Holbrook Hall, built to accommodate one hundred girls, was completed. The Boswell Memorial building was built and used as a library for nineteen years. In 1890 the chapel was finished. In 1880 the trustees purchased 135 acres north of the College site and converted the land into building lots to sell. In less than two years two hundred houses were built. Student activities were growing with the College. Literary societies, Christian associations, and a glee club had been organized, a college magazine published, and football and baseball started. In the early nineties, Washburn shone in oratory. From 1889-1892, Washburn representatives won first place in the State Oratorical contest and in 1890 Mr. Naylor took first place in the interstate contest.

The equipment of each department has been enlarged greatly during these years. The library now contains from twenty to twenty-five thousand volumes. Several very rare copies are included in this number. One of these is a copy of Roger Ascham's "The Schoolmaster" printed in 1571. Among the oldest volumes is one published in 1543. Another valued possession is the original copy of the Treaty of Friendship, Commerce and Navigation, made between the United States and Uruguay during President Pierce's administration. This is accompanied by the United States seal. The library for sociology and Bible is especially well selected and comprehensive.

The remarkable growth of Washburn from 1896 to the present time is shown by the following figures:

	Departments	Buildings	Endowment	Students	Teachers
1896	College Academy Music	Rice Boswell Chapel Whitm Holtbrook Hartford	$339,000	214	14
1906	College Academy Fine Arts Law '02 Medicine '02 (discontinued in '13)	(Additional) Crane Observatory Heating Plant Medical Building Library	$506,000	720	25
1916	College Academy Fine Arts Law Engineering	(Additional) Law Building Thomas Gymnasium	$1,049,330	905	60

Washburn is still a denominational school under the Congregational church, and the spirit of democracy and world betterment which inspired the founders, is still pre-eminent. Wherever Washburn graduates may be,—in the army camps and battlefields, as many of them are, in the mission field or at home, they strive to make their lives exemplify the noble motto on our shield: "Non nobis solum"—"Not for ourselves alone."

Traditions and Customs.

Washburn, situated in a land famous for Indian legends—the legends of the Kaws, of the Wakarusa, the Shingamunga and the Mound, is fitted for having a hoard of valuable traditions. Students of Washburn had a splendid opportunity of hearing of some of these traditions on last Washburn Day. This celebration of Washburn Day, the founding of the College, on February 6, is one of the oldest of Washburn traditions and one of the most valued. Classes are dismissed on this day at ten o'clock and the remainder of the morning is occupied by a celebration in the chapel. This year a patriotic service was given. Dr. Charles M. Sheldon told of his recent trip to England and a flag service for the enlisted men was held. The afternoon of each Washburn day is given over to the Holbrook reception, and the night to a dinner for all Washburn people. Toasts after the dinner this year were given on Washburn traditions—

CLASS SCRAPS.

The class scrap, in its numerous forms, seems to be one of the earliest customs. Many tales have been told of the cane rush, of sophomores madly trying to capture canes from the obstreperous freshmen and many are the girls who have roamed the campus during these night raids, hoping to release some unfortunate admirer. Now, in the more gentle push-ball contest, the freshmen and sophomores are given a chance to prove their supremacy in a less dangerous way. Another form of conflict indulged in, in the days gone by, is the May Pole scrap. This was a contest in which the freshmen and sophomores vied with each other in placing their colors on a May pole planted on the campus.

THE OLD BELL.

To Washburn students and graduates, who know the history of the Old Bell, now mounted in state between Rice Hall and the Library, the bell is not merely a bell, but is almost human, and can be heard faintly whispering of athletic victories, of halloween pranks, of the ghostly apparitions in the gloomy subterranean passages of Rice Hall. Then, one can hear it murmuring sadly of the fierce fire which loosened it from its mooring in the tower of Rice Hall, and caused its final fall. But, more cheerfully, it hurries to add the story of the rescue, the long sleep in the cave, when classes battled for the honor of placing it in a suitable resting place, and then of the final glory of its present position. No—the bell is something more to those who know its history—it is a monument of treasured days of old.

THE DEAD LINE.

In the old days, when Hartford Cottage was cut off from the main campus by a high board fence, and when it was considered quite an offense for a gentleman to walk across the campus with a young lady, it was rather difficult for gallant swains to see the fair damsels as often as desired. There were no strolls thru lovers' lane, and few hikes to the popular Shunganunga or Mound, in those days, but often some brave young man would take courage to cross the "dead line" as the separation was called. It is rumored that our dignified (shall we say winsome) Dean McEachron used to meet the present Mrs. McEachron by rather unconventional, not to say dangerous means.

THE COLLEGE MULES

No anthology of Washburn traditions would be complete without mention of the College mules. The two mules, Kit and Jenny, short for Katherine (or Catherine) and Genevieve, now deceased, were primarily supposed to be used for college work. However, they were often commandeered to take the students and even the faculty on hay-rack or bob-sled rides. But these mules were more versatile than most mules, as one would expect college mules to be. They used to appear quite frequently with class numerals painted on them. Kit, the white one, looked especially charming when thus adorned. But it was decreed that these mules were to be sold after years of faithful work. Some tender hearted students could not bear the thought of this cruel fate, and spirited the mules out into the country. The animals were left in good care, but, since the kidnappers neglected to pay for the upkeep, the mules were soon returned to the proper authorities.

THE MAY FETE

Several days, besides Washburn Day, have been set apart for special celebration. One of these is the day on which the May Fete is held. This is a beautiful outdoor fete in which all the organizations of the College have a part. The crowning of the Queen of May plays an important part of this celebration. It is given under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. and the proceeds are used for some praise-worthy enterprise, such as sending delegates to the summer Y. W. C. A. conference, or, as this spring, the bringing of a French girl to Washburn for the purpose of giving her an education in an American college.

HOBO DAY

Another annual fete day is Hobo Day. On this day it is a crime to appear in any costume other than that of a hobo. This year even the faculty caught the fever and appeared in most "hoboish" costumes. The celebration occurs the day before a big football game, and the big events are the "pep" meeting and whole school picnic.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK

Commencement week contains many events which make home coming interesting for the Alumni, and which make the students feel, more than ever, the spirit of Washburn. The weeks program always include the following:

- Baccalaureate Address
- Class Day Exercises (including the planting of the ivy)
- Faculty Concert.
- Alumni Banquet.
- Reception at the White House.
- Washburn Walk.
- Class Reunions.
- Serenades.
- Commencement Exercises.

The above events are all self-explanatory excepting the Washburn Walk. This is given on the campus, brightly lighted with Japanese lanterns, and made fanciful and beautiful with fairy arches. An orchestra furnishes music thru out the entire evening and everyone comes to walk with everyone else. Dances are given on the grass and if there is any pleasant surprise coming to Washburn friends, it is given then.

ORGANIZATION

English Journal Club.

THE object of the English-Journal Club is to bring its members into closer touch with modern literary movements, emphasis being placed on the best things in modern literature.

Its membership is composed of students having six hours of College English credit.

The meetings are held every other week at the tea hour, five o'clock, when light refreshments are served. However this altogether delightful custom has been discontinued during the war.

La Cercle Francias.

STUDENTS who have completed one year of French are eligible to membership in La Cercle Français. The club is primarily for the purpose of acquiring conversational French and its programs consist of "nous chantons, causons, mangeons et jouons des beaux jeux."

The meetings are held every other week at the homes of the different members.

Der Deutsche Verein.

FOR fifty years Washburn has had a German Club. The purpose of the organization is to cultivate conversational German and to acquire a knowledge of the customs and traditions of Germany.

The meeting place for the "Deutschen Geister im Holden" is in the south studio of Holbrook Hall. A lively program is held twice a month which aims to keep everyone "im Zauberhann" during the evening.

OFFICERS.

President	Florence Grice.
Secretary	Marie Carter.
Treasurer	Dewey Hutchinson.

La Junta Castellana.

ALTHOUGH new, the Spanish Club is one of the most interesting clubs on the campus. Students who have had one year of Spanish are eligible to membership.

The meetings are held in the south studio of Holbrook every other week and a nominal fine is charged any member who speaks any language other than Spanish during meetings.

OFFICERS.

President	Dorothy Crane.
Vice President	Pauline McVey.
Secretary-Treasurer	Marguerite Calvert.

Biological Club.

TUDENTS who have completed one year in either Botany or Zoology are eligible to membership in the Biological Club.

The meetings are held in Rice Hall every other week. The programs vary, always, however treating a subject of interest to students of this department.

This club is another organization which has given up the regular "cats" and used the money to send magazines to a soldier camp.

OFFICERS.

President	Isla Dooley
Vice President	Ruth Thompson.
Secretary	Nina Hanson

Prohibition Association.

HE Prohibition Association of Washburn College is the only organization in school whose dominant purpose is to stamp out the use of "John Barleycorn." The Association has done a remarkable work in the few years that it has been organized.

The Washburn Association is a branch of the intercollegiate Prohibition Association and works in and thru the larger organization. It sends a representative orator to the annual intercollegiate State Prohibition Oratorical contest and in a general way, has sought to educate the public mind to a belief in National Prohibition.

OFFICERS.

President	Sam Heller
Vice President	Ernest Cornell
Treasurer	Laurence Graves

Political Science Club.

THE Political Science Club, organized by Professor Kirkpatrick, is unique because of the fact that the members of the classes in Political Science make up the membership and the meetings are held at the regular class hour, once a month.

The chief function of the Political Science Club is to bring men of recognized ability to address the club. The meetings are educational and exceedingly worth-while. Among the speakers of this year, have been, John White of Chicago; George Hughes, Harold Chase and Attorney Evans.

OFFICERS.

President	John Troxell.
Secretary-Treasurer	Helen Welty

Mathematics Club.

THE purpose of the Mathematics Club is to encourage independent investigation of specific problems and fields on the part of the members, and to get in touch with wider movements in mathematics thru occasional outside speakers. Usually work of more general interest is taken up than can be done in the class room.

This club is the most recent organization in the way of campus clubs. All students are eligible who have completed one year of college mathematics.

Medic Club.

OR the study of medicine there is a preparatory course offered to those students who plan to take up the Medical Course. This preparatory course is very thorough and consequently very popular.

On December 8, 1916, the Medical Society was formed and a constitution, drawn up by Francis Curry, Mabelle Cook and Margaret Price, was adopted. The object of the organization is to broaden the prospective medical student's knowledge of the field of medicine.

Any instructor who is teaching, or any student who is enrolled, in the courses preparatory to the study of medicine, are eligible for membership in the society.

Expression Club.

ONE of Washburn's newest organizations, is the Expression Club. The general purpose of the club is to bind the students of the expression department more closely together, and to give them experience in appearing before an audience. All students enrolled in the department are eligible for membership. The club meets every two weeks on Thursday evening in the expression room in the Fine Arts building. Instructive and entertaining programs are given, consisting mainly of recitations or farces. Sometimes outside speakers of special ability are asked to take part on the program. The Expression Club is not at all selfish with its talent, but often invites outsiders to enjoy the programs with the members.

Miss Meek, head of the Expression Department is the faculty member of the organization.

Faculty Club.

PRIMARILY, the Faculty Club is for the purpose of bringing the faculty together for social life, but it also serves as a means for the exchange of ideas. At first the organization assumed the form of a Current Events Club, to which each member contributed something of interest in connection with his own department. Professor Todd was the first president.

Now, however, the programs of the club have taken on a different and varied nature. And the organization has become more of a social club. Different members of the faculty entertain the club at their homes. The meetings are held monthly and the whole faculty family is invited. Once a year a faculty supper is given.

Literary Life in Washburn.

ASHBURN Literary Societies are institutions of long standing, although they no longer are the center of student activities. The development of many departmental clubs accounts for the decline of their importance. The membership has been limited for several years and this has brought compulsory attendance on the theory that if one is not interested enough to attend, the place should be given to someone who is.

The Washburn College Literary Society, which was established in 1882, has been discontinued this year, owing to the large number of its members engaged in military service. This leaves only one men's literary society and three girl's societies.

The Helianthus society which was organized only this year, has solved the problem, long a troublesome situation, of providing a society for the large number of girls who could not be cared for by the other societies, with their limited membership.

All of the literary societies at Washburn strive to serve the College by furnishing the material for the debating teams and oratorical contests. Not only do they furnish material, and afford excellent training for those interested, but arrange to attend such contests and debates in a body and support the home teams.

This year these societies, like all other organizations, have rendered further service by contributing to the Red Cross fund, and sending magazines to military camps. The Washburn Girls Literary Society also presented the College with an enormous service flag on Washburn Day.

Press Club.

Organized 1916

PURPOSE:—To provide publicity for Washburn College and to stimulate interest in Journalism among Washburn College students.

REAL service to Washburn is rendered by the Press Club giving publicity to both the College and its students. Press notices are sent to the home papers of the students upon every occasion when the student has won some special honor.

The meetings are held monthly and experienced newspaper men talk to the club at these times. A good deal of practical knowledge about journalism is gained in this way.

Membership requirements consist of a number of newspaper articles and a certain amount of reporting, which is passed upon by a board of approval. The staff for the Review is selected from the Press Club.

OFFICERS.

Vice President	Amy Swenson.

Religious Organizations.

FOR all of the religious life and activities of the College, the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association, form the nucleus.

The regular meetings of the two associations, which are held every Wednesday noon, for only a part of their regular program, as their interests range from sending missionaries for the foreign field to holding classes at the Industrial School and Orphan's Home.

John Parkinson, Edward Thompson, Lyman King, Ray Gmel and Clair Menninger go to the Industrial School every Sunday morning and have Sunday school classes. Once a month the Y. M. C. A. men go out and take the boys on a long hike, or bring them in town for a picture show.

The Y. W. C. A. is likewise very active and under its Social Service system does a great deal of good. Every week they give entertainments at the Orphan's Home, Ingleside and Crittenton Home, besides sending Victrola records to the tuberculosis sanitarium and keeping in touch with Washburn boys in the camps.

Although the main purpose of these organizations is the promotion of the religious life of the College, they each have their social side as well. The big joint reception held at the start of the school year, gives every one the opportunity of meeting the new students, and old acquaintances.

Both associations are large and their meetings attended by the majority of the students.

Top Row—Hobbs, Anderson, Reed, Perty, Hutchinson.
Bottom Row—Shoup, Troxell, Graves, Menninger, Kassebaum.

Y. M. C. A.

ALTHOUGH the Y. M. C. A. has been greatly handicapped by the lack of men in college this year, it has made a very creditable showing under the leadership of Graves and Reed. The aim of the association is to promote a spirit of helpfulness, good fellowship and the development of Christian character among the men of the College.

Successful attempts have been made at holding Sunday school classes and discussion groups at the different fraternity and rooming houses. This has become a regular part of the association's activities.

Freshman Commission.

PURPOSES—The purpose of the Freshman Commission is to develop among the younger girls in Washburn a more personal interest in the Y. W. C. A., through study of the organization and its work, both local and national. It attempts to prepare the Freshman girl for leadership in Y. W. C. A. work, to promote a spirit of democracy and service on the campus and to develop as much as possible the spiritual and religious lives of its members.

The members of the Commission are chosen by the Cabinet, from the Freshman class.

A Washburn Missionary in each country bearing a cross

Student Volunteer Band.

IN 1886 the Student Volunteer movement was organized as a result of the student conference called together at Mt. Heamon by D. L. Moody. Its distinctive purpose is to secure students who will actually go out from the United States and Canada and spend their lives in non-christian lands in the work of establishing Christ's Kingdom. The movement also has a strong reflex influence in stimulating the Christian life of our colleges and universities and in leading large numbers to devote their lives to Christian service at home as well as abroad.

The Washburn Volunteer Band was organized May, 1886 with twenty-five members. Since that time about forty Washburn people have gone to the foreign field, including in their number many of the strongest students ever in Washburn. In all over 6,500 Volunteers have sailed from Canada and the United States.

The Volunteer Band conducts a Mission Study class for the members of the band and from time to time have experienced speakers.

IN Washburn the Student Council is the chief student governing body in college. It serves as the connecting link between the faculty and the student body, and through the cooperation of the faculty and this body, a harmonious settlement of all controversies is accomplished.

The regular duties of the council are to conduct all mass meetings, school elections, supervise college publications and grant dates. The last duty consumes a good deal of the council's time and prevents any conflicts which might occur. Preference is given to school affairs when granting dates. A complete advance calendar is published at the beginning of each semester, announcing the dates which have been granted.

Further duties of the council are to arrange for the annual contest between the Freshmen and Sophomores. Also to provide the small, blue, Freshmen caps for the Freshmen at the beginning of the school year.

The council also arranges for an all-school party each year, given in the gymnasium and including all students. This affair is quite elaborate and always well attended and regarded as one of the chief school functions.

The officers of the council are elected each spring, at an all-school election. Each class elects a representative every semester, alternating a boy and a girl, each to run for a full year. This method of election prevents any break in the membership which might otherwise occur, and makes of the council a permanent, smooth running body.

Other student government bodies in Washburn, are the Athletic Board of Control and Self-Government in Holbrook Hall.

Phi Sigma Omega.

Established March 9, 1918.

HI Sigma Omega founded by Mrs. P. P. Womer and Miss Jessie Dean, and organized March 9, 1918, is an organization of out-of-town Washburn girls who do not live on the campus and are not members or pledges of any sorority with a chapter at Washburn. The motto of the organization is "Friendship, Sociability and Service" and its object is to unite the members in a wider friendship and loyalty to the deeds of the College.

Self Government at Holbrook.

PURPOSE:—The purpose of student government in Holbrook is to strengthen the spirit of unity and sense of individual responsibility by self-government through practical, well regulated cooperation.

STUDENT self-government has been used in Holbrook for over a year. The executive council, composed of the officers and proctors meets weekly. A council of all the girls meets twice a month. The main officers are chosen for a term of one year, the proctors quarterly. This system of self-government has proved highly successful.

OFFICERS.

Holbrook and Hartford.

ARTFORD Cottage and Holbrook Hall are the two dormitories on the campus which furnish homes for the out-of-town girls. There are nine girls at Hartford and thirty-one at Holbrook.

A new dormitory will be built as soon as the unusual conditions caused by the war, will permit. This will be a fine building and $42,000 have already been raised toward it. To all intents and purposes this building would have been built this summer, but the time did not seem a good one in which to erect a new building.

THE TRINGHIDE

Athletic Association.

THE purpose of the Washburn College Athletic Association is to promote the physical education and hygienic training of the students of Washburn College, and to exercise control over football, baseball, basketball, track athletic, tennis and other sports carried on in connection with and by the students of Washburn College.

The members of this association consists of all members of the student body who have won an athletic "W" or who hold student enterprise tickets.

The Board of Control has the supervision of all athletic interests of the College, and of all funds and property of this association.

burn for a second time he coached seven years at Haskell.

Dr. Kennedy has now answered the call of service and is with the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Funston.

Elmer Ernest Bearg.

ERNEST Elmer Bearg, Washburn's coach for next year, is a Washburn graduate of the year 1916. Bearg is known as one of the greatest football players in the Missouri Valley. He played on the Washburn teams of the seasons of 1912, 1913, 1914, and 1915. He was an all-Kansas backfield man. He also was a star player in basket ball and a winner in track athletics.

For the past two years Bearg has been coach and athletic director for the Topeka High School. His football team has a reputation over the state. Only three games were lost during the two years.

Bearg's high moral qualities and the rigid discipline thru which he puts his teams is well known over the state.

Dr. A. R. Kennedy.

COACH A. R. Kennedy has had charge of Washburn Athletics for two years. He came to Washburn from Haskell in the fall of 1916.

Kennedy is an old K. U. man, and later a Pennsylvania graduate. He played two years on the K. U. team and three with the Pennsylvania team. Upon completing his work for his degree, he decided to take up the coaching profession along with his denistry.

Kennedy coached Washburn from 1900 to 1903, then went to K. U. where he stayed five years. Before coming to Wash-

ANOTHER season has come and gone, and Washburn may not be the richer but the wiser. The season looked dark at first, i. e., before regular practice started, but after the first week of real grinding—the sun began to break thru the low-riding clouds. On September 28, twenty-two Ichabods boarded the Santa Fe, bright and early, for the border town Atchison. Several old faces were in the crowd as well as many new. After kidding the pretty Midland Co-eds for twenty or thirty minutes, the boys in blue were called to attention by the referee's whistle. Well, 'nuf said, Askew was slated for an all-state berth and Washburn had won 28-0. The light hearted warriors arrived home in good spirits (Kansas term) and settled down to a heavy week of ring-round-rosy and drop-the-handkerchief in order to be tamed down enough to enter a little church social with Dr. Weed's barrel-constructors from Sterling. But lo! the military seemed to have taken affect in Sterling too, for Dr. Weed brought every man in school along, including the kindergarten class, and every one was hunting blood. Anyway Dr. Weed walked home (on the R. R.) with a 3-0 victory plume in his hat, the second in three years, which seemed to indicate that the Sterling lads had the locals outclassed in the parlor games.

A grim, determined bunch it was that rooted dust two feet deep for the next six days—on the seventh the inevitable happened. Ottawa—Well, the good old story, Washburn won 10-6 on straight old football.

Things began to illuminate, Perry was back in condition and playing like a demon. K. U. only 30 miles up the Kaw had heard of Washburn, and, no slurs, but they practiced behind closed gates that week, even if Washburn didn't hold the Missouri Valley championship. Washburn could win, Washburn would win.

Manderville hit, but stopped, Laslett skirmished, but couldn't strike, yea, even the mighty Pringle struck a stone wall, K. U. had to kick. It was a game of pluck against Beef. Washburn is respected, Washburn is admired, yea, even praised by K. U. for the admirable fighting spirit she exhibited to Kansas.

Bradshaw

With Harvey limping and 'Brick' rather unstable on his pegs, the defenders of the Blue, journeyed to the Methodist settlement on November 10. The odds in favor of the preachers, Washburn settled down to business, and evened things up, marching off the field to the tune of 0-0. Glory be to Ichabod.

"Kennedy at last has a fighting squad." "Topeka is proud of them." "Washburn enters game with a big hospital list." "Odds against locals this afternoon." Such are the headlines that appeared thruout the week preceding the Normal game. Topeka came out to the Ichabod's field. They saw a masterpiece in football. The score was 0-0. Washburn seemed to be adopting the tune 0-0 for a school anthem.

Bad luck never comes alone—after this showing against the Kansas Champs, Washburn took on the sons of Erin from St. Marys. The old proverb is, that the Irish and trouble travel hand in hand. It was so in this case, the Catholics trimmed the locals pride 13-0. Nobody understood how it happened, neither have they found out.

The rest of the season was a miniature Russia and was never settled until the final whistle blew on Thanksgiving day, announcing that King Football had abdicated the throne, but before leaving decreed victory on the boys from the Cow College 38-0.

Eleven letters were granted this year. Those receiving them were: Logan, Perry, Callihan, Baker, Heller, Hope, Harvey, Moyer, Askew, Hutchinson, VanHorn.

Prospects for Next Year.

Prospects for Football next year at Washburn are altogether better than Washburn has ever had. This extraordinarily bright outlook is due to many things. First, we are to have a coach who will undoubtedly put a lot of 'pep' into the student body and the team; Second, Freshmen are to be played on the Varsity team. This will make a strong team possible which would be absolutely impossible under the present ruling, owing to the scarcity of men; and third, and perhaps the strongest argument for a bright season for Washburn next year, is the fact that a Booster's Club has been organized by old Washburnites, Washburn friends and business men who are anxious to see Washburn succeed in football and other athletics next and who realize that she must have help to do it. This club will furnish funds and arouse enthusiasm and give support of every kind to the Washburn team.

Washburn's tentative schedule shows several large schools that she has never played before. Haskell will play here Thanksgiving and the K. U. game will be October the nineteenth.

Undoubtedly the enthusiastic support of the Boosters Club is going to mean a great deal to Washburn athletics.

Kassebaum

However in spite of all of the foregoing reasons why our team for 1918 should be one of the best teams for many years, there are reasons why it will not be perfection itself. These reasons, of course, are Budge, Baker, Perry, Askew, Moyer and others who would have played on the team, if they were not in the service of Uncle Sam.

Perry was the captain-elect. He is now with the coast artillery and is stationed in Maine. Perry has always been one of Washburn's strong athletes. He has played on the Varsity team for two years and one year on the Freshman team. He has two letters, and is president of the Athletic Board. This year, Perry's position on the team has been fullback. He is a clean, strong athlete that Washburn will miss.

Henderson

Baker is another strong man, Washburn regrets having lost from her team. Baker played quarterback and also coached the freshman team. Baker also has two letters. He is now with the artillery.

Askew, although only a first year Varsity man, made a good record at center. Askew is in the service, also. Askew was on the third all Kansas team.

Budge is another strong man who will not be back next year. He is enlisted in the aviation. Last year Budge worked under a handicap of a broken leg, which put him out early in the season, but in that short time he showed that he knew football, and could play it.

These men Washburn will miss keenly, as they form the nucleus of her old team. But there are prospects that there will be an abundance of new material for the 1918 team.

McCord

Shoup

And as freshmen will be allowed to play on the Varsity, Washburn can utilize every bit of football material that comes here next fall.

It is to be hoped that these men, who have proved themselves good, clean fighters on the gridiron, will continue to use this same fighting spirit on the battlefields of Europe, and that they will "fight to the finish" in the Great World Game.

The Freshman Team.

ASHBURN'S Freshman Team played only two games this year, Wentworth Military Academy and the Santa Fe Offices. However, much credit is due the Freshman for reporting for scrimmaging the Varsity.

About twenty Freshmen were in suits through the season, and some very good material was brought out, which promises well for the next year's Varsity team.

Coach Kennedy coached the team himself and rewarded the faithful ones by taking them all to the K. U.-Washburn game at Lawrence where they made valuable rooters.

BASKETBALL.

Basketball Season.

 WING to the departure of so many men, for military service, Washburn decided to lift the freshman rule in athletics for the basketball season. This was done in order to keep a team in the conference. The Athletic Board and the student body decided that it would be more sportsman-like to have a team in the field, regardless of the results. While the results were not of the most gratifying, yet considering that four of the squad were first year men, the final score is not bad.

Although only three games were won, there is some satisfaction in knowing that the other games were lost by narrow margins, which fact goes to show that our boys fought well and continuously.

The student body as a whole showed unusual interest in the basketball season. In a mass meeting at the beginning of the season, the students voted to advance the price of the student enterprise tickets, in order to carry out the proposed basketball schedule.

The men on the team also displayed a good fighting spirit although there were comparatively few old men on the squad. About fifteen men reported for practice.

The squad was as follows: Dean, Port, George, Heller, Erickson, Harvey, Stimpson, Cossman, Godell.

Six letters were granted this season. Those receiving letters were: Dean, Heller, Erickson, Port, George, Harvey. No captain has been elected for the coming year, because of the uncertainty of the return of many of the boys.

Prof. DeBeukelear.

MUCH credit is due Coach DeBeukelear for his earnest work toward developing and rounding the squad into shape. Prof. DeBeukelear does this in addition to his regular duties as professor of Chemistry, and the student body is deeply indebted to him for the successful basketball seasons for several years.

Next year, Coach Bearg will coach the team and as his position is that of Athletic Director, solely, he will be able to devote much more time to it.

DeVaughn Dean.

CAPTAIN DEAN as the only veteran on the team, deserves much praise for his excellent work. He directed the green team given him with much competence and succeeded in capturing the score on three occasions, and putting up a good fight on all occasions. Dean won his letter last year as well as this.

Track.

AT the time of going the press, Washburn was just getting her track team organized and the whole matter of track was very uncertain. Of course last spring track, like all other spring athletics, was much impaired and very little was done in this line.

This year, however, Elmer Bearg, has consented to put the boys into shape and a number of men have reported and are trying out for the squad.

We only plan on entering the Conference Meet at Ottawa, which is to be held the first of May. There is much promising material, however, and Washburn stands a good chance of making a fair showing.

Men who are trying out are: Hutchinson, Heller, Beldon, Harvey, Becker, VanHorn, Gugler, Prawl, Erickson, Poort, Chapman, George, Stimpson, Harris and Hunter.

Tennis.

FOR the first time in several years, Washburn is going to enter inter-collegiate Tennis. A great deal of enthusiasm has been manifested in this branch of athletics this spring and a number of men have reported. The inter-mural tournament will be held late in April and the winners in that contest will represent Washburn at the Kansas Conference meet held at Ottawa in conjunction with the track meet.

The winners in the inter-mural tournament will receive a silver loving cup, presented by the Athletics Association.

GIRLS' athletics in Washburn are limited almost entirely to local contests, as there are no inter-collegiate athletics for the girls. Early every spring tennis clubs are organized and tournaments held.

The ideal of the department is not only to furnish the rest and recreation needed by college women, but also to stimulate a desire and give training for systematic physical exercise after school days are over. The department follows the ideal that a woman's education is not complete unless she learns to do those things which will allow her the greatest physical development.

Miss Edith Meek,
Physical Director.

Miss Edith Meek is the physical director. She has been in Washburn only a year but during that time has accomplished a great deal, both in this department and in the Expression department, of which she is also the head. She is very popular with the students and faculty and through her energetic efforts has created a new interest in the two departments with which she is connected. She has organized a basketball team and introduced other new and interesting features into the gymnasium work.

Gymnasium.

WASHBURN College requires two years of physical training for graduation from the Liberal Arts Department. The gymnasium classes are large and the course is interesting. Early in the fall, much of the work is out-of-doors, consisting of tramps across the meadow, and to the Shunganunga, outdoor baseball games, and various other outdoor games.

One of the new courses that has become very popular is the course in playground work. A two months session is held and students are trained for summer playground work, as playground supervisors, and chantauqua children's work. Special training is offered in pageantry and May fete work, also.

The Jonathan Thomas Gymnasium, furnishes a fine home for the athletic department and it is well equipped.

Basketball.

INTERCOLLEGIATE athletics for girls has never been encouraged by Washburn, but since there has been a state-wide movement to organize girls' athletics, Washburn is planning on entering in. A basketball team was organized this year and was coached by Miss Lucile Gates of the city Y. W. C. A. Several games were played with local teams. The chief competitor being the Y. W. C. A. team.

Following is a list of the girls who played: Mildred Graham, Hilda Dyer, Margaret Seaton, Lizzie Campbell, Agnes Grubb, Uarda Baird, Hildred Hines, Jessie Henery, Elizabeth Sherwood, Florence Leland, Minnie McCauley, Ivy Kretzmyer.

Bulletin.

THE Washburn College Bulletin is a journal, sent out bi-monthly to the alumni and friends of Washburn, in order to give them news of all affairs pertaining to Washburn. This bulletin which was formerly published ten times a year, was changed to a bi-monthly journal this year as a war measure. Some of the issues of the past year are:

September—Announcement Number.
October—Alumni Register
November—Yale-Washburn Number
December—Military Number
January—Ambulance Company Number
March—Student Promotion Number

The editors of the Bulletin are:

Handbook and Directory.

PUBLISHED annually for the benefit of all Washburn students, especially the freshmen, the Handbook and Directory contains important facts and information concerning Washburn. The Handbook is gotten out under the direction of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. and is presented to the students on registration day. It contains all the college yells, a street guide, and a history of Washburn College with a list of student activities. There are a few blank pages at the back for memorandum.

The directory of college students and faculty members with their addresses and telephone numbers, is published later. This fits into the handbook and the two form a compact book of necessary information.

EXTRAORDINARY conditions this year have made it very hard to publish the Kaw. Despite the fact that two managers have been drafted and four of the male members of the staff have enlisted, the three remaining boys and nine girls on the staff have faithfully and ably worked to make this book worthy of the friends and students who will read it.

The successful publication of this book is largely due to the managers. They have managed the financial end of the enterprise under particularly trying circumstances.

AT one time oratory and debate was a great problem in the colleges. The problem lay in how this branch of student activities was to be carried on in an interesting and live manner. This period has long passed in Washburn. This activity is now considered by the student body at Washburn as one of the most important activities of the season. The Student Council has recognized this feeling and plans are now under way for the awarding of W's for participation in forensics.

The progressive and wide-awake interest in the public speaking department of Washburn is due to two factors. First the very successful seasons that Washburn has enjoyed for the last few years, both in oratory and debate.

The second reason for the live spirit of this department, is no doubt due to the able efforts of Prof. E. D. Schonberger, who coaches the debates and orations. Mr. Schonberger is also professor of Public Speaking.

It has become the custom of the past year for the literary societies to attend the meetings in a body, which greatly adds to the pep and enthusiasm of these contests.

Washburn always has more challenges to debate than she can accept. This year she has been able to accept more than usual. There were two girls' debates and the boys Pentangular, which calls for two debates from each team. This debate is a boy's debate, but this year Miss Frances Gaw was on the team.

DRAMATICS

WHOLE-SOME interest in dramatics has always been present in Washburn College. This year, however, that interest has been increased because of the excellent quality of the plays presented and the development of the department of expression.

The Dramatic Club is the official organization for this department. The club has a membership of twenty-four and is a member of the Drama League of America. This affiliation assures the presentation of productions of the highest class.

The club generally presents three plays during the year. A spring and fall play are given at the Grand Opera House. These plays are always presented with excellent scenery, usually prepared by the Art Department and are carefully coached. They are usually popular, modern plays by modern authors.

It has long been the custom of the organization to present a play out of doors in the spring. This play is usually a Shakespearian play and is given in the natural amphitheater back of Boswell Hall. An effort is made to have this play given during the Commencement week festivities and constitutes one of the chief attractions.

The proceeds from the plays are used for some improvement about the campus or by the club for that department.

The newly organized Farce Class, in the Department of Expression has also furnished many entertaining dramatic events. This class presents a number of farces during the year. They are given in the Chapel and generally coached by some senior in the Department of Expression. With the proceeds from these playlets, the class has furnished the expression rooms with attractive and comfortable furniture. Miss Edith Meek, head of the Department of Expression, has charge of these productions, although the coaching and presentation are done entirely by the students of the department.

Dramatic Club.

MEMBERS of the Dramatic Club are all interested in the study and presentation of the drama and possess some degree of ability and talent in this line. Its plays are considered very well presented and always of a high standard. The Washburn Dramatic Club, compares favorably with similar organizations of the large universities and its productions have gone a long ways toward professional perfection.

The House of Rimmon.

Presented June 4, 1918.

DURING Commencement week last year, the Dramatic Club presented the House of Rimmon. This took the place of the usual Shakespeare play and was given in the natural amphitheater out of doors, at night.

The elements seemed to be in sympathy with the plot of this very dramatic play. For during the first acts of the play, when the treasonous plot was being planned, brilliant streaks of lightning flashed through the clouds and deep rumblings of thunder broke in upon the speeches. However, when the villain was discovered and all was running smoothly, the moon came out and bestowed its blessing on the happy ending.

The scenery of the play was very unusual and it was painted and erected under the supervision of Merrill Gage. A huge idol, made for the occasion and standing taller than a man was made by the modeling classes, and furnished a most uncanny touch to the scenery.

The House of Rimmon was written by Henry Van Dyke and the lines are expressive of his usual poetry and imagination. Its success as a substitute for the annual Shakespeare production was marked.

Her Husband's Wife.

WHEN the thermometer registering about fourteen below and the heating system of the Grand Opera House failing to compete with the situation, the Dramatic Club presented "Her Husband's Wife," by A. E. Thomas, on January 11, 1918.

The situation presented in this clever play was very unusual. The young and attractive wife concerned herself during the course of two acts with the choosing of a suitable wife for her husband, because she believed herself on the point of leaving this world of cares behind. Her choice, of course is an old friend who has a good heart, but is decidedly dowdy. But to her chagrin, the chosen wife turns out to be very attractive and at the same time very interesting to her husband. According to the traditional perverse nature of woman, the imp decides not to die but to live and show the chosen second wife just how worthy a wife she can be.

In spite of the chilly atmosphere in the Grand, the play was warmly received by a large audience, and declared one of the best ever presented by the Dramatic Club.

Prof. E. D. Schonberger coached the play.

The Yellow Jacket.

AN old theme is treated in a new and interesting way in this quaint Chinese play. The interest is aroused by the typical Chinese manner of presentation and by formal but poetic lines.

The story is one of filial devotion, ambition, hate and love. The loss of a throne, the love of a royal princess, and the intrigue of a rival step-brother, are some of the main threads which make this play interesting.

Yellow Jacket will be presented by the Dramatic Club early in May. There will be no stage setting as we understand the word, but all of the changing of scenes, shifting of furniture, etc., is done by the ever-present property man, who is to the eyes of the audience, invisible.

The play is coached by Prof. E. D. Schonberger; Miss Ruth Koester, assisting.

THE Christmas Mystery Play, given on December 16, by the Department of Expression, delighted one of the largest audiences of the year with an elaborate Christmas play. It was given in the Chapel and there was not room for all the students and their friends who came.

The costumes were very elaborate and beautiful, as was the setting, and the whole production was very artistic.

The boys' and girls' glee clubs sang the parts of the angels and choir boys. Jessie Henery, as the King's daughter and Johnny Shumate as the Shepherd's daughter had the two leading parts. Elizabeth Hand took the part of Miloo, the maid. Omar Rames, Kenneth Hobbs and Roy Owens were Shepherds; Frank Moyer, Lester Welty and Lyman King were Kings.

Miss Meek coached the play.

"Either or Eyther" and "A Pair of Lunatics" were presented by the Farce Class on the an evening, early in the season. They were given in the chapel to a capacity house. Carla Baird, coach.

"The Arrival of Kitty" an hilarious farce given by the Farce Class in February. They took this farce to Holton where it was given successfully.

Other farces given by the class this year are, "Tickets Please," "Her Nephew-in-law Elect," "The Happy Day," and "Overtones." These were all given in the Chapel to good houses and were highly successful.

A LEERY LIE-RIC.

Some things are never what they seem to be,
And some things seem to be that never are.

Young William was a Freshman, and a tender heart had Bill
He shed salt tears of sorrow, when he saw them wimp-poor-will
But Bill alas, was simple; he always told the truth;
And his clever brother Jimmy presumed upon his youth

For James told Bill a story that caused him greatest pain,
His tender heart a-quiver, he caught the early train
He sought the weeping willow; he wished to dry her tears,
But found to his amazement, she'd not wept a drop in years.

He saw the pine trees pining, and he feared that they would die
He wished that he could help them, so he asked the reason why.
They said in moaning whis-pers low, "We pine for yew, you see."
But when he said, "you flatter me" they laughed in scorn, "Yew-tree"

Rebuffed by such unkindness, Bill resolved upon a flight,
He asked the flying fish for wings, and tried with all his might
He found he couldn't fly, and hitched his wagon to a star,
But the star he chose was falling, and alas, it fell too far!

He fell into the ocean, and he thought he'd breathed his last
But then, an octopus, an army officer, came past
He threatened Bill with drowning unless he took the oath—
The army or the octopus? They're each as bad as both.

So William joined the army, and dispelled his fond illusion,
Commanded to "Fall in," he did, but picture his confusion—
He'd jumped into the brooklet, and was playing with the trout,
When the arbitrary sergeant yelled in great disgust, "Fall out!"

Bill's detail was the kitchen, and he soon became a cook,
He learned a lot of funny things that aren't in any book,
That mess should not be messy, and that though the chimney flew,
The rifle range is not a bird, and yet is shot at, too.

And William grew more wise each day, until he knew so much,
No one could speak of anything his knowledge didn't touch.
So when he heard a "camel flew," he knew 'twas no mirage,
But false pronunciation of the Frenchman's camouflage!

THE DELTA BROTHERS.

Though all the world is familiar with the famous Nile Delta, Phi Delta, Mississippi Delta and Alpha Delta, only comparatively few persons know that they are brothers. They have all made their mark in the world, but Nile and Mississippi have probably made the deepest impression. There are probably not four other brothers in the world whose spheres of activity are so varied and comprehensive. It was Phi Delta, of course, who put the "Phi" in the "Phizz that Fizzes." Alpha Delta was responsible for the big Alphabet gamble which so nearly caused a panic in Wall Street last year. Anyone seeing Miss Delta and Phi Delta together would know them for brother and sister because Mississippi's big mouth is so like Phi's. Nile Delta has long been renowned for his ability to produce famous crops. Alpha Delta rivals him however, in raising cane, and it is rumored that his corn crop is good.

MR. IMA PIG.

The president of the Rooter's Club in a famous Western College, has recently acquired distinction for the signal way in which he rendered service to the Allied Cause. In the course of his rooting, he discovered a German bomb, and devoured it, mistaking it for a potato. The processes of digestion caused the bomb to explode, and it is to be feared that he will be unable to root for a while. It is that that this bomb was a key to a mine system which would have blown up the whole country if it had not been prematurely destroyed.

MR. KAPPA SIG., M. A.

Mr. Kappa Sig., M. A., has recently demonstrated what can be done in the political world, by one even of such a scholarly turn of mind as he. Indeed, it would take a scholar, used to abstract philosophizing, to hold the difficult position which Mr. Kappa Sig. now occupies, for he is at once, brother-in-law, son-in-law, cousin and father of the President of the United States. In fact he is everything but the President, himself, and the President's female relatives. However, since it is rumored that M. A., in this case, means Master of the Terpsichorean Art, he possibly accomplishes such contortions with ease.

THE MAN WHO WOULD BE KING

By His Majesty

Numbers of persons have wondered, why, of those who are persons to royalty, I wanted to run for king. The reason is simple and evident. When a man is keeping company with a queen of any kind of queen, English, Movie, or May, the proper behavior must be maintained. There are times when this is very awkward. There need be no distance between a king and queen. The only surprise he wished to propose (this of course, is pure supposition) he could not. He would have to wait for the queen to pop the question. If the queen was of a modest nature, she might object to being spoiled. But should she be so courageous, think how embarrassing to both of them, if he did not wish to accept! Readers will probably understand now why I should be elected and I thank them all for election to the office of May King.

I'm the first the, only Hoover
And I'm sure to be the last
Tho' there may be some who diet,
Only I can always fast.

Naught to me are wheatless, meatless
Days may come and sweetless go,
Flour to me is but a powder,
White, tho' not so cold as snow.

So I've hoarded up these riches
Piled them high in priceless heaps.
You may give them to the Belgians,
Send them while the Kaiser sleeps.

You may have my share of food stuff
Gathered since the world began,
For I'm nothing but a shadow,
I have never been a man.

On Duty.

DEAR GUS —Well, Gus, this is my busy day, being on fatigue duty, but since I heard about you being afraid to get into the army on account of a fellow not having any show unless he's got pull, I thought maybe it was my duty to write about how I got along and didn't have any pull, either, but just did my duty.

You know, Gus, about how it was when I was in college, and into everything, and always for the good of the school, and because it was my duty. I won't mention anything much, but just let you remember about being captain of the football team, and editor of the Caw, and president of the student council, and etc. Well, you know I never did want all those things but how everybody just made me do them, because of always being so steady and dutiful, and Gus, it's been just that way since I went into the army. Just do your duty as you see it, and even if it disagrees with what the captain tells you, you always get what's coming to you, every time.

Well, as I say, I've just been doing my duty since I got to camp, and now look at me. And all on account of being ready to do my duty. I suppose you've read it in the papers, but I'll tell you the truth about it. Well, I was doing my duty one day, when along came a sergeant, and said the General wanted to see me, and I said I couldn't stop doing my duty for any foolishness, but would go if the General meant business, and the sergeant said that was the right spirit, and he thought he did. Well, Gus, I didn't know whether to keep on doing my duty or to knock off and go see the General for a while, but I thought maybe it was my duty not to slight the General, because he might need cheering up, or something, and so I went.

"Sir," I said when I got to his office, "The General ordered Private P—— to report in person this morning at ten o'clock in the General's office." Now, Gus, I wasn't trying to hurt his feelings by using all that kind of talk, but it says in the regulations that it's a fellow's duty to talk in that icy, distant sort of way to a fellow's superior officers, and you know how I feel about duty, Gus.

And then the General said, "Oh, none of that between you and me. Sit down and have a cigar." Well, Gus, I sat down and had a cigar on account of it's being my duty to obey the General. I would have sat down any way, on account of not being able to stand up, because you could have knocked me over with a pin feather because of the General's being so familiar with me.

Well, Gus, he said it did him good to see a fellow that was always doing his duty like I was. He said it made him feel like there was somebody in the army that he could depend on. He said a fellow that always did his duty ought to have pretty good judgment, and he'd heard a rumor that his division was sure going to leave that night for France, and he didn't know what to do because he hadn't got any orders yet, and did I think it was his duty to pack up all ready to go, or should he wait for orders. And I said I thought he ought to, and he said he guessed he would, and he was glad that the opinion of a fellow like me that always does his duty, agreed with his opinion, and would I come to a dance that night at his house.

Well, Gus, I told him I was on duty that night, but he said it's your duty to be at the dance, so I went. Well, Gus, he had a daughter, and on account of it's being my duty to be nice to all daughters of superior officers, I danced all evening with her. At the end of the night she asked if I left a girl behind me, and I said no, I just left girls behind me, and she said that was all right, and we could be married the next day.

Well, Gus, I did my duty, and after the wedding, all the generals that were there said they had a surprise, on account of my always doing my duty, and would I accept a general's commission. I said no, I didn't know how to be a general, but when my wife said I would be a General Disappointment if I didn't, I saw what my duty was and I did it.

Hoping you are the same,

GENERAL PRINCIPLE.

P. S. —Our cook left today, and my wife has put me on kitchen duty.

Dear Sir:

Permit me to express our satisfaction and keen delight with the progress Velma is making with her music under your able instruction. The "drudgery" of practicing seems to have been transformed into a real pleasure to her, and I assure you that her rapid improvement has been most gratifying to us.

I am indeed glad to commend the thoroughness and personal attention which characterize your instruction as well as your peculiar ability to inspire and maintain an interest and determination in your pupils.

I consider that if a word of recommendation from me were to direct a pupil to your school, I would be doing that pupil a greater service than I would your institution.

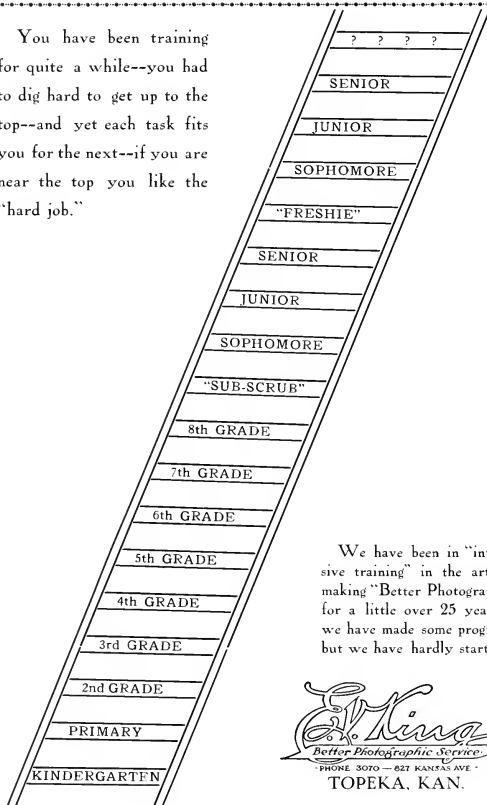

Assuring you of my best wishes and again thanking you for your personal interest shown in Velma's behalf, I remain,

Yours very truly,

VACATION PROFIT.

While a student in Washburn, JOHN A. FAY spent a part of his last two summer vacations at Dougherty's. The day before commencement he told Mr. Dougherty he would like a stenographic position at once after graduating, and within an hour Mr. Dougherty had arranged for him to go to work the day following commencement, in a good position with the Santa Fe.

Thus he was six months ahead in salary of what he would have been had he waited until after graduation to prepare for work; and, besides, he had made much use of the shorthand in his school work and earned no small part of his school expenses as he went.

Mr. Fay has for some years held especially fine positions with the government, in Manila and elsewhere.

Oh Cleopatra was a queen who lived beside the Nile,
Her lover Antony, a King, who came a thousand mile,
And Antony, he loved her lots, but had to go away;
Poor Cleo thought she couldn't live to see another day.

But daylight came, she still survived; there came a guest to call,
He came to bring her hope. He said, "Let not your courage fall,"
"I bring a cure for every woe; 'twill cure the sorest heart,"
"Twill find another man for you, if you will do your part "

"Palm Olive Soap; that is the charm. Use every day and night,
And somewhere, in the years to come, a man will come to light."
So Cleo used Palm Olive soap, but men were hard to find,
Until she came to Kansas. Then she soon made up her mind

LITTLE ODDITIES OF LIFE.

There are numerous oddities in life. First among the things which are odd, we think of 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, etc. And then, of course, everybody's queer but thee and me, and thee's a little bit odd. In case you had never considered this truth, we will enumerate some oddities for you to consider. Study them; you may be there yourself.

A Date.

GUARDIANS OF THE NATION

In PEACE and war the Bell telephone girl at the switchboard protects life and property in each community. In danger and disaster, it is her quick response which summons aid and brings order out of chaos.

In the Bell system there are 100,000 operators whose presence at the switchboard adds to the security of the nation.

More than 12,000 of these faithful operators have been especially trained to meet the requirements of the Government for telephone service.

Like a soldier on guard, the telephone girl is always alert and at her post of duty. Everything is done to make her physically and mentally fit for the splendid service which she renders to the company and to the public.

FIRST AID TO GERMANS.

One of the most popular courses in college since the war began, has been a lecture course on First Aid for Germans. This course offers many valuable suggestions, and should be thoroly mastered by all patriots. Its persistent use would be a great aid toward winning the war. Some of the most efficacious treatments are repeated below:

1 Treatment for a man apparently drowned:

First drown the patient; then work his arms up and down to expel his chest.

Second wash out the mouth, being careful to draw it forward to avoid choking.

Third draw out the tongue by pressing firmly on stomach, turned face down.

Fourth, clamp nostrils firmly together with clothes pin to prevent possible entrance of dirt, which might obstruct breathing.

It Pays to Remember One's Friends

There has always been a close feeling of friendship and co-operation between the students of Washburn College and this Company. We hope to see this continue through the succeeding years.

2. Treatment for Concussion of Brain:

First remove brain and sterilize to destroy any bacteria which may have been lodged in the tissue, during the accident. Brain should then be burned.

Hard Work and General Good Times

Our clothes are all torn, and our hair's in a mess,
Our buttons are off, and we've often cut class,
We've lost all our friends and we've found all our foes,
Their comments have frozen us clear to our toes.

We'd retire in disgrace, but we haven't the money,
To buy a Fisk tire. Now isn't that funny?
We've broken the rules, (just of grammar, not law)
Can you guess who we are? Yes, of course, we're the Kaw.
